Kangana Ranaut is self-quarantine due to the coronavirus outbreak. A few days ago, the actress went to her home-town in Manali to be with her friends and family members. Due to sudden lockdown on film shoots, the actress barred her from joining the crew in Hyderabad for the shooting of her upcoming film, Thalaivi.

The actress took her 10-day-schedule break and was about to resume work when the director stopped the work at studios. This gave her a chance to spend time with her nephew Prithvi and catch up with her parents and siblings, whom she had not seen for several weeks because of her on-going work commitments.
